TELLS OF FINANCES

Examiner, Who Examined Books
Some Time Ago, Releases Rapid
Progress Made in Daugherty's
Capital Status

(By the Associated Press)
Washington, Court House, O., Apr. 11.—An almost complete check was administered here today to the senate Daugherty inquiry. A phalanx of lawyers, mingling into the temporary hearing room set up by Chairman Brookhart and Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Missouri, a special sub-committee of the senate, made clear and certain the refusal of M. S. Daugherty and his associates to allow the financial transactions of Harry M. Daugherty, former attorney general, or Jess Smith, the ex-attorney general's "friend and hanger-on," now dead, in the Midland National bank, to be traced out by examination or testimony.

TELLS OF DAUGHERTY'S FINANCES

The senate sub-committee did, however, through Chan Phelon, an examiner in its own employ, who was allowed to search the Midland bank records for a few hours several weeks ago, learn that Harry M. Daugherty's name was shown on certificates of deposit in the Midland bank to the total of $75,000. Phelon further said, testifying from the testimony, that he found two or three certificates of deposit ranging up to $25,000 and $20,000 in total, in the bank records. He also said that four certificates, each of $5,000, made out to "J. E. Gray," or to "J. A. Gray," but endorsed by H. M. Daugherty, were reported by H. M. Daugherty, another committee agent, testified that the tax records at Columbus showed H. M. Daugherty to have presented a tax return for 1923 with total assets of $22,000, offset by $2,700 in indebtedness. In April, 1923, the former attorney general, who had just taken office, filed a tax return indicating assets of $12,000 without indebtedness. On the first of May, in 1923, H. M. Daugherty was shown to own 500 shares of Wright-Martin Aircraft corporation stock, while in the 1923 return he accounted for 2,500 shares of the same stock. Senator Wheeler made the point clear that the Wright-Martin company was one which has appeared in the Daugherty testimony as receiving government contracts.

SIMMONS WOULD PAY

$1 Per Day—Bill May Pre-

Washington, Apr. 11.—Incorporation in the soldier bonus bill of an option for full cash payments to veterans on the basis of $1 for each day of service above 90 days will be proposed by Senator Simmons, North Carolina, ranking Democrat on the senate finance committee. The bill will be taken up again tomorrow by the committee, and Republicans, who have agreed generally on the terms of the house insurance bill, predict that measure will be ordered reported to the senate. The house measure would allow computation of adjusted service credit on the basis of $1 for each day of home service and $1.25 for each day of overseas service, above the first 90 days.

GO OVER FORMER TOPICS

The Miller land fraud cases were discussed by the committee with J. J. McGraw, former Republican national committeeman from Oklahoma, who said he had talked in Washington with Mr. Daugherty about the criminal cases against the Miller brothers but finally declared that every communication he had made in the case had been ignored. McGraw said Daugherty told him the cases would be dropped because there was nothing else he could do.

SOLUTION OF REPARATION
PROBLEM SEEN

Reparations Commission Unani-

GERMANY HURRIED

Reply From Berlin Desired Before
Elections in That Country May 4—Poincare Wants His Name in History

(By the Associated Press)
Paris, Apr. 11.—What appeared to be the dawn of a solution of the reparation problem broke over Paris tonight with the unanimous adoption by the reparations commission of the report of the experts committee and a recommendation by the commission that the respective governments accept the findings of the experts. The recommendation was couched in such a manner that it seemed practically impossible that the interested governments can evade the issue.

EXPERTS DECIDEDLY POWERFUL

The prompt acceptance by the commission of the report of the experts was taken as evidence that the experts did not form such a "non-official" body as the various governments were at pains to make it appear to the public at large. It now develops that M. Poincare, the French representative of the Dawes committee, was in constant touch with M. Barthou, president of the reparations commission, who in turn conferred daily with M. Poincare, the French premier. Sir Robert Kludenz and Sir J. C. Stamp, the British representatives on the Dawes committee, were continually in communication with Premier MacDonald and M. Poincare, the Belgian member, with Premier Thaelens.

TIME LIMIT FOR GERMANY

Although not official, the limit has been set for Germany to reply to the reparations commission's invitation to accept the experts' report. It is said the Reich has been requested to decide within the shortest possible time what action it will take, it being the commission's purpose to ascertain Germany's decision before the German election, which are to be held May 4. It is understood here that Premier Poincare also is desirous of having the question settled before May 11, the date for the French legislative elections. M. Poincare, it is asserted, is ambitious to go down in history as the man under whose tenure of office the reparation problem was settled.

THREE WEEKS AGO IT WAS FELT STATED

In German circles in Paris that the German government would accept the report of the experts made along the lines then known. Since that time the plan of the experts has been modified, favorably to the Germans, by the location of the seat of the new bank of issue in Berlin, instead of in a neutral country.

ADMITTS FORGERY TO PAY
BLACKMAILERS' DEMANDS

Philadelphia, Apr. 11.—Arrested on charges of swindling two men out of $2,000, Mrs. Anna Reswick, a gray-haired, middle-aged woman, admitted, according to the police, that she was a bigamist, and had committed forgery to placate blackmailers who threatened to expose her to her second husband, William C. Martin, president of a storage company and vice-president of a suburban bank. She admitted the detectives declared that she had "faked" Martin at least $20,000, all of which was turned over to the alleged blackmailers, whom she named as Herbert Russell and Edwin Hamilton and whose arrest she caused shortly after being taken into custody herself. Pawn tickets for jewelry pledged by Mrs. Reswick were said to have been found in Hamilton's pockets.

LOCAL POSSIBILITIES.

Out on the prairies of Nebraska a big business corporation, asking a village merchant to stock up with bathing suits, met the reply that on the waterless plains there was no need for bathing suits, that there is for pain heat from the North pole. This the head of big business retorted that the people would have to drill wells and build artificial pools. The retort, half in joke, was taken seriously by the merchant, who went home, interested his neighbors, secured plans for pools from the knit goods people and presently in addition to the pioneer pool, there were dozens of others established in territory where there was not enough surface water to bathe a canary. Incidentally, there was a market established for bathing suits in Nebraska.

There is unquestionably something of suggestion in the above incident, something which may be as applicable east as west, north as south, in New York, as in Nebraska, and locally it is almost any community the country of water over. One may be located, to quote the title of one of Gell Hamilton's most sprightly books, "Twelve Miles From a Lemon," and yet the individual or community opportunity exists and only awaits development. The real difficulty, generally speaking, is to determine just what enterprise is best adapted to the town; but there is no question that there is some such opportunity everywhere which merely waits the awakening touch.

It is therefore well for our own or any other town not to be too much discouraged by temporary conditions which may have as result a possible shortening of business activities, or a reduction in the number of workers employed. Square feet do not fit in round holes, and what is needed is in most cases is more readjustment. This accomplished, the wheels of industry will turn again, and there will be "business as usual."

In the same line it may be suggested that the fact that certain occupational activities have ceased to function is not a necessary cause in any town for discouragement. The amount of available labor in a community has necessary limitations, and the cessation of industries which the industrial concerns is not so large that the bulk does not often seem to interfere an insuperable obstacle. When a town, well situated on railway lines and state highways, and with a considerable contributing territory, is able to say to big business that it has the buildings and there is plenty of help available, it is on the highway to success not only in securing industries but selecting the kind it wants.

If, therefore, any one has felt a degree of anxiety regarding minor industries for Oneonta, it is suggested that no great concern should be felt. For the past two years or more the Chamber of Commerce, in common honesty, has found it necessary in answering inquiries from business concerns to submit figures showing the actual number employed, which to men accustomed to such enterprises might not have seemed entirely encouraging. At this time the chamber, vigorously alert for business, is able to submit figures and facts which are full of encouragement alike from the standpoint of factory buildings and of available factory employees. This that body is doing, and there is no reason to doubt that its efforts will at no distant date be crowned with success.

THE GUIDE POST—
BY HENRY VANDYKE

THE FOUR GOSPELS

And there are also many other things which Jesus did, the which, if they should be written every one, I suppose that even the world itself would not contain the books that should be written.—John 21:25.

It seems to me a thing to inspire confidence in the gospels that the different writers who give us their records of the divine revelation speak so naturally, each in his own style and manner, with no effort to imitate their predecessors.

If four witnesses should appear before a judge, to give an account of a certain event or a series of events, and each one should tell exactly the same story in the same words, the judge would probably conclude, not that their testimony was exceptionally valuable, but that they had agreed to tell the same story.

But if each man told what he had seen, or he had seen it, then the evidence would be credible.

And when we read the four gospels, is not that exactly what we find? Four men telling the same story, each in his own way, and behind these four men we know not how many of them who had seen the Lord and conversed with Him and remembered what He had said and done.

Such men what others did not see, and such men what others did not hear.

These collections of narrative are words of their sharing.

These witnesses would have agreed to tell the same story.

ONEONTA LOBBY DEBATES

Norwich High School Capron's Best Speech with Oneonta High Last Evening—Speeches of Students of Oneonta.

In spite of the fact that Oneonta High school last both debates in a dual contest held with Norwich High school last evening in the local high school auditorium and at Norwich, those interested in the contest are gratified with the quality of the debates and debating promises to become one of the most interesting of the local high school competitions. The dual debates of last evening, which the first inter-school debate in which Oneonta has ever been represented, Oneonta had the advantage of the proposition: "Resolved, That the Deeper Hudson Project is Preferable to the St. Lawrence Plan." In the debate held here and the negative in Norwich. Norwich was victor in both events by a 2-1 vote of the judges: At Norwich: Prof. E. W. Hill, Colgate university, Judge J. H. Hill, Norwich, and Prof. A. F. Mills of the Oneonta State Normal school; at Oneonta: Principal M. J. Muller, Cooperstown High school; Attorney N. F. Bonney, Norwich; and Attorney Arthur Seybold, of this city.

The O. H. S. team, upholding the affirmative of the proposition here, was composed of Horace Lansing, Olive Rose, Robert Leamy and Dorothy Howard, alternate, and excellent work was done by the team. The Norwich team was captained by Merion Adams and included Stanley McLagan, Rachael Smith, and Richard Marshall, alternate.

Mr. Adams was a forceful speaker, and his rebuttal was apparently most effective. During the conference of the teams before the rebuttal a musical program was given. Frank Walsh recommended two solos in fine voice, accompanying himself on the piano. "The Empire State" and "Hark! Hark! the Lark" were two selections pleasantly given by a quartet composed of Harold Thayer, Helen Dibble, Edith Little and Frank Walsh. All of these numbers received hearty applause.

The Debate at Norwich

At Norwich O. H. S. took the negative side of the proposition, the team being composed of Olga Trish, Bruce Shear, Blanche Southworth, and Clyde Johnson, alternate. The trip was made by motor car and the party, along with the Norwich team, was entertained at a banquet served by the Parent Teachers' association of the Norwich school.

The Norwich affirmative team was composed of Charles McCluskey, Marjory Judd, Florence Long, and Louisa Kent, alternate. The debate at Norwich was full of excellent argument and much praise of the Oneonta team's efforts was heard there. But again Norwich had the edge of the contest and the judges voted 2-1 for the affirmative.

The Oneonta High school teams were coached by Miss Wagner and Miss Scoville of the faculty, while Miss Thompson of the Norwich faculty supervised the preparations of those teams.

The proposition was divided for both debates, by common consent, into three divisions, feasibility, economy, or strong financial basis, and beneficence.

CONGREGATIONAL MEETING

Over Two Hundred Present at First Methodist Episcopal Church Last Evening—Rev. E. F. Wilber, the Speaker.

Over two hundred were present at the congregation supper of the First Methodist church held last evening in the church parlors under the auspices of the Men's Bible class of the church. Besides the usual selections by the Sunday school orchestra and a boys' chorus, an address was delivered by Rev. E. F. Wilber, an entertainment feature of the evening.

The supper was served by divisions of the Women's Home Missionary society of the church and was very good in every respect. Proceeding and during the supper numerous selections were given by the orchestra of the Sunday school, which, under the direction of Mrs. C. N. Murdoch, has achieved quite a reputation throughout this vicinity. Surely their music last evening was of a high character. A boys' chorus sang one number, accompanied by the orchestra, which made a hit with all of the present.

Following the service of the supper a social fest was conducted by Jerry Wilbur with Ernest Bolton at the piano, which put all in a jovial mood.

W. E. Fiske presided as toastmaster, and after thanking the ladies for their work in preparing the supper, and expressing the satisfaction of the Men's Bible class with the results of their efforts, he called upon Dr. Flynn, pastor of the church, who presented Hon. D. F. Wilber, the speaker of the evening. However before introducing the speaker, Dr. Flynn gave a welcome, especially for a delegation of members of the Elm Park Methodist church who were present.

Mr. Wilber, after stating his pleasure in being back among so many of his friends, and especially among those friends of the church which for many years was the place of worship of his family, spoke interestingly of his experiences in the consular service of the United States, taking the audience on a trip around the world through visits at the various countries in which he had been stationed.

DRESS ACCESSORIES

Discussed at Municipal Building Friday Afternoon by Mrs. Gardiner.

Mrs. Frank Gardner, who is a clothing expert and has charge of dress work for Otsego county, addressed a large audience of women in the Municipal hall yesterday afternoon on the subject of "Dress Accessories." She told many interesting and instructive facts in a very pleasing manner.

Mrs. Gardner started with the dictionary definition of accessories as things added or subordinated and showed how the definition applies in regard to dress. Some of the things listed as accessories are: Rings, beads, bracelets, pins, combs, collars, and cuffs, purses, hand bags, etc. With regard to when and where we should wear these she made the following points. We should use only those which contribute to the whole costume. The colors and textures should be pleasing and harmonious. The ornaments worn should be suitable to the personality of the wearer and to the occasion when they are worn. They should serve the purpose for which they are intended and we should not use too many of them.

They should be used to complete a good costume rather than to cover up a poor one. The well dressed woman is the one who is dressed inconspicuously so that one cannot remember definitely any particular thing she wears but only that the whole effect is pleasing.

Mrs. Gardner was assisted in her demonstration by the following ladies who served as models and dressed to emphasize some of the important points in the lecture: Mrs. Bert Thompson, Mrs. W. J. Hill and Mrs. Tracy Bard.

He Was Hungry

The ant worked, saved and accumulated all summer. The grasshopper spent the summer singing. When cold weather came he went to the ant for food. What did you do in the summer time while I was working? asked the ant. I was singing replied the grasshopper. Oh, you were singing, were you? Very well; dance now, said the ant and he closed the door and the poor grasshopper froze. This will well apply to people who spend their time and money with jazz music, the grizzly-bug dance and the movies; while others work hard, save up, place small monthly amounts with me, which I safely roll at six per cent compound interest and they now have several million dollars for food, coal or to provide for old age, sickness or loss of a job. It ought to learn people not to act like the foolish grasshopper, as my latch string is always out to help, at 54 Chestnut street. People at a distance from Oneonta can use the mails. I'm the safe and sane Oneonta Building and Loan association. Wake up. advt 11.

BEST WONDERFUL BOOK

Evangelist Johnathan Lowman Discovers Bible at River Street Baptist Church Last Evening.

The evangelist service at the River Street Baptist church opened last evening with about 115 people in the audience and four pastors on the platform. They were Rev. Mr. Case of Uadilla, Rev. George Bowler of Hartwick, Rev. Edmon J. Farley of the First Baptist church of this city, and Rev. N. S. Burd, pastor of the River Street church. All three outside pastors brought other persons with them.

The special musical feature was a baritone solo rendered in a most pleasing manner by Newton Darling of the First Baptist church. Miss Maida Blanchard, a student at Bible school park, Ithaca, gave a very good insight into the school work at Bible school park, where she and Evangelist Lowman were classmates.

The speaker's message was, "The Most Wonderful Book in the World." He spoke of the 722 languages into which the Bible has been translated and of the various books of the Bible. He also gave many statistics concerning the Bible which were very interesting. The facts which Mr. Lowman discussed were most of them facts which the majority of those present had never heard of nor thought of before. He described many phrases that have been hard for us to understand in such a way that his auditors could not help but comprehend them. Mr. Lowman spoke of the Bible from a literary, a philosophical, a prophetic and an influential standpoint and his message was as interesting as any message that he has so far delivered.

Officially proper

The proprietors of all bathing beaches may find their precedent in the Atlantic City rule which allows the one-piece variety, and have legs, but insists upon tight reaching within four inches of the knees. The picture shows Mayor Bader, of the seaside resort, and Sir George Burrell, giving their O. K. to the 1924 styles as worn by the pretty mermaids.

ONE VOTE OUT OF TWENTY

Little Entomologist Shows in Last Week's Primary—List of District Commissioners and Voters.

The cautious of votes cast at the primary election held in Oneonta county on Tuesday of last week shows the smallest attendance of electors known at a spring or any other primary in the twenty-four townships and the city of Oneonta. The total number of citizens indicating their preference for delegates and members of the state and county committees was a little over 500. Out of the 10,000 eligible voters, the highest vote was 253, and on the Democratic was 253, or a total of 512 votes, which is about one in twenty of the total registration.

The names of the candidates on both tickets for delegates to the state and national conventions, and members of state committees have already been printed, and in no instance was there any opposition. Below are given the members of the county committees for each party, as elected in the several districts:

LINOLEUMS

Elsewhere in Central New York

This statement is based on the fact that at no time have we ever had such a variety of patterns or so large a stock—this is not a boast; it is simply to show the advantage of choosing where the choosing is almost unlimited.

As to qualities: they are all good because we do not put in stock any linoleum we are not wholly satisfied will stand up to our high ideas of what good linoleums should be. To be sure there are various grades and the better ones are better than the other grades—however, each in its own class for the various uses intended, will give you satisfaction, be it felt base or the best kind made.

Be sure and see this display before purchasing elsewhere.

Incense Dangles For $100,000

MAISONVILLE, Ontario, April 12.—The "Incense Dangle" which has been the subject of the most beautiful bidding war in America, has been bought for the sum of $100,000. The dangle is a small object which may come to "Miss St. Louis" which might cause injury to her before or during the time when she is contestant in the Atlantic City Pageant of September 1908 where she will appear in the "Incense Dangle" which is the most beautiful of its kind and the greatest of its kind and the most beautiful of its kind and the most beautiful of its kind.

As Miss St. Louis of last year's Atlantic City Pageant, Miss Nash was so close to winning the Golden Medal, and the most beautiful of its kind and the most beautiful of its kind and the most beautiful of its kind and the most beautiful of its kind.

the world took four hours to reach final decision which gave her second place. This year the friends and partisans of Miss Nash from every section of the land believe that she will snatch the Beauty Crown from the field of at least 100 beauties entered in the Inter-

City Beauty Contest and have insured her against disappointment which might follow mishap that would mar any detail of her beauty.

Rare Specimen of Cone-Shaped Shell Exhibited

New York.—In a specially provided case in the foyer of the American Museum of Natural History, there is exhibited for the first time one of the most highly prized cone-shaped shells ever found in the world. According to scientific authorities it is properly called "The Glory of the Sea."

It is about five inches in length, of peculiar slender appearance, graceful proportions, and has a tapering tip. It suggests an unfurling conch. The ground color is pale ivory, overlaid with a mosaic of thousands of triangular scales ranging from an eighth of an inch to almost microscopic size. These triangles are outlined in three yellow or deep chestnut brown. Three broad spiral bands of orange encircle the body which beneath the frosted pattern, adding richness to the color scheme.

One must see the shell itself, the museum authorities declared, to appreciate this and observe the porcelain luster that in certain lights suffuses it with a faint rosy sheen.

During the year 1868 George N. Fisher, head of the committee on public information, pointed out Hugh Cumming, the great British conchologist of his time, chanced upon three specimens of this beautiful mollusk on a Philippine reef. It is said that the reef was destroyed a few weeks later and no more of the specimens were found there. The shell was known to collectors as early as 1796, but even then was very rare and was much sought after. Only 12 to 14 are today represented in collections, and not more than half that number are perfect. The specimen at the museum was collected at the island of Otaheite, in the Moluccas.

Land Granted to Lafayette

In 1803, Lafayette was given ten different grants of land along the Mississippi river, and in 1824 he was granted one township which comprised 36,360 acres of land in west Florida. Tallahassee is now located on this land. It is impossible to give the locations of the other grants, as the land was not surveyed at that time except by special surveys, which were indicated by smaller land marks.

Gaps in One's Life.

At certain periods of life we live years of emotion in a few weeks, and look back on these times as on great gaps between the old life and the new.

Advice for Women.

Women should cultivate their minds so that men will not miss their beauty when it leaves them.

Why Married Men Succeed.

More married men succeed than bachelors, because a horse runs faster when whipped and spurred.

AMERICA BUILDING 35,000 MILES GOOD ROADS YEARLY

By S. W. Strom, President American Society for Thrift

One of the important factors in the development of our country—one of the best indices of national progress—is the amount of improved highway construction now taking place.

Just as the development of the nation's state and transportation lines a few generations ago marked the beginning of a new era in the progress of our people, so the present period of highway improvement is bringing about rapidly improving conditions.

According to figures that have been compiled by the Bureau of Public Roads and the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce we are adding 35,000 miles of improved highways to our system each year and now have substantially 400,000 miles of roadways of this type.

In 1904 we had 153,000 miles of rural highways improved with some type of surfacing, so that in the last two decades about 250,000 miles have been added or enough to circle the globe ten times.

These figures, of course, do not represent the total mileage of improved and unimproved rural roadways in the United States which on January 1, 1929, was 2,941,294, a gain of 785,000 miles since 1904.

This amazing development of highways has in many ways practically revolutionized modern life. Thousands of persons who formerly spent their lives in the great cities are now getting out into the country where their appreciation of this great land is made more comprehensive and where they are able to cultivate gardens and secure the many benefits of semi-rural existence. The former isolation of the farming community has largely disappeared, and the people of this nation have a better understanding of each other than ever before because of this closer contact.

New wealth is being created, new interests in life are being aroused and employment on an economically sound basis is being given to thousands of men.

The development of good roads is a splendid type of national thrift.

Dancing Boys of Paris Must Now Earn Living

Fifty per cent of the sleek-haired, seductively perfumed, ingratiating young men who hang around the select dancing places of Paris live a sort of Jekyll and Hyde existence. Some of them actually have to work for a living.

An American who spent the evening in a "dancing" in the Champs-Élysées district, woke up the following afternoon in a Montmartre hotel and noticed several extraordinary facts.

First, there were no chambermaids in the hotel. Their places were taken by "valets de chambre." Second, when he ordered one of the servants to prepare his bath the old valet de chambre appeared a quarter of an hour later to tell him it was ready. But the "valet" was in evening dress, or at least of it he had time to put on.

"You see," he explained, as he fixed the pearl links in the cuffs of his silk shirt, "I'm due at the Hahaka palace of the king. I'm getting out of here just as soon as I can."

Then the American really woke up. He remembered the face of the "valet." He had seen him do a tango with an exquisite dance in the same Hahaka resort the previous evening. There were four "valets" in that hotel. They were all "dancers" after working hours.

LARGE INCREASE IN CANAL TOLLS

Panama Traffic Shows Gain of $2.65 Per Cent.

Commercial traffic through the Panama canal in 1923 showed an increase over 1922 of 66.07 per cent in the number of transits, 30.35 per cent in net tonnage, Panama canal measurement, and $2.65 per cent in tolls collected. Vessels of United States registry exceeded those of all other nationalities combined, with vessels of British, Norwegian, Japanese, German, and Dutch registry in the order named. Vessels of these six nationalities made up more than 50 per cent of the total canal traffic.

The tonnage and number of ships in the different nationalities were: British, 5,458,897 tons in 1,148 ships; Chile, 237,847 tons in 66 ships; Colombia, 10,978 tons in 36 ships; Danish, 241,728 tons in 68 ships; Holland, 505,000 tons in 117 ships; Ecuador, 36 tons in one ship; Finland, 4,706 tons in three ships; France, 327,708 tons in 124 ships; Germany, 508,702 tons in 124 ships; Greece, 16,168 tons in four ships; Italy, 152,083 tons in 39 ships; Japan, 753,440 tons in 158 ships; Yugoslavia, 15,400 tons in four ships; Mexico, 192 tons in one ship; Norway, 652,175 tons in 160 ships; Panama, 40,854 tons in 29 ships; Peru, 202,808 tons in 75 ships; Spain, 118,454 tons in 34 ships; Sweden, 141,726 tons in 34 ships and the United States, 15,270,218 tons in 2,368 ships.

Heavy Intercoastal Trade.

A comparison of traffic statistics for the second half of 1923 with those of the same period of the year before indicates a healthy growth of the United States intercoastal trade and of the trade of South America with both the United States and Europe. Exports from Europe to the west coast of North America have increased, but cargo movements over this route in the opposite direction have fallen off, due mainly to light grain shipments in the autumn of 1923. Exports from the United States to the Far East and to Australasia have increased, while imports have declined. There is the same situation in the case of the traffic between Europe and Australasia.

An indication of what rate and in what direction traffic through the canal is developing, the Canal Record points out that the cargo in transit from Atlantic to Pacific from July to December, 1923, totaled 3,090,230 tons, against 3,159,590 tons from July to December, 1922. The increase is equivalent to 2.2 per cent. The cargo from Pacific to Atlantic in the same periods was 5,565,448 tons and 4,729,185 tons, or an increase of 10.2 per cent. If California crude oil is deducted from the last totals, then the 1923 cargo tonnage from Pacific to Atlantic figures out at 4,274,356 tons, and the increase amounts to 8 per cent.

"The grand totals," says the Record, "prove that trade through the canal is growing at a fairly rapid rate, and there is no reason to believe that this growth will be retarded during the coming year. On Nov. 1, 1923, a circular letter was addressed to all the principal steamship companies using the canal, requesting them to furnish a rough estimate of the tonnage they would dispatch via Panama in 1924. The replies were generally optimistic. While some of the lines anticipated any sensational increase of business, nearly all replied that they expected to find employment for the same tonnage as in 1923, or possibly a little more."

ON Trade Transit.

"The only direction in which a sharp decline is likely is in the California oil trade. Oil shipments are still holding up well. They totaled 804,547 tons in December, as compared with the September peak of 809,870 tons, but this business is still regarded as transient."

"The most important recent development in the intercoastal trade has been the announcement of the American-Hawaiian line that its services would be curtailed by the withdrawal of six steamers. The statement issued by the company late in December, reads:

"The outlook for 1924 in coast-to-coast trade is not bright. We feel that the time has come to concentrate our fleet and organization on the best possible service to the shippers and passengers from these ports of call. We have accordingly revised our schedules to give weekly sailing between Philadelphia, Boston and New York and our Pacific Coast ports of call both westbound and eastbound. Charleston will be served with a regular call every three weeks eastbound. We will not longer call at Savannah or Baltimore. Our regular express service from Boston and New York westbound will be unimpaired by these changes, and we will give Philadelphia a weekly service in both directions as against the present two-weekly sailings. A regularity in schedule and dependability of service will be maintained as in the past. Shippers not entitled to the service will be held up, but they will be available to augment the frequency of the service if and when cargo offerings warrant."

"It is reported that the United American Lines have also reduced the frequency of their intercoastal service, and the Gardiner line recently withdrew altogether from the intercoastal trade. In the time for January 1, the San Francisco Shipping Register, comments officially on these withdrawals and continues: "We would be surprised if one or two of the smaller lines would be forced to terminate their services in entirety. If not, the only possible solution seems to be voluntary, and, if possible, proportionate reduction in the tonnage of the larger companies."

"While the intercoastal situation is undoubtedly serious as viewed by individual shipping companies, the reports of the Panama canal from this trade is secured so long as the cargo moving in both directions continues to increase. The statistics prove that it has increased materially during the past year, quite apart from the oil trade."

The intercoastal movement of lumber shows only a slight falling off. The tonnage of lumber from the west coast of the United States (mostly intercoastal, but including some foreign shipments) totaled 105,284 tons in December, as compared with a monthly average of 111,477 for the period from July to December. The total for this six-month period in 1923 was 668,888 tons, as against 630,448 tons during the corresponding period in 1922.

"The commercial interests of British Columbia have been successful in their efforts to secure the appointment of a Canadian customs officer at New York for the inspection of Canadian products routed via that port for shipment through the Panama canal to Vancouver, and reports indicate that several new lines are to be established in the spring for service between Montreal, Halifax and Canadian west coast ports."

"Grain shipments from the Pacific northwest to Europe are still far below the figures for the previous season. Wheat cargoes from July to December, 1923, totaled 53,700 tons as compared with 94,467 tons in 1922. The loss has been in shipments from United States ports. Shipments from Canada increased from 110,070 tons to 162,255 tons. It is reported that there was very heavy chartering for the loading of wheat at Vancouver for Europe in January, February and March, and the totals for the grain year therefore equal or exceed the figures for 1922-23."

"The inauguration of the Dollar line around-the-world freight and passenger service should help stimulate American exports to the Far East. It may also have some effect on the intercoastal situation."

"Nitrate shipments from Chile totaled 272,714 tons in December. This is the heaviest nitrate tonnage for any month since January, 1921, when detailed commodity statistics were started, although it may have been exceeded during the war. The unusually heavy December tonnage probably represents delayed shipments, which were held up by a stevedores' strike in the loading ports from September to November. The outlook for nitrate, copper and South American products in general appears bright."

SEMI-OLD GIRL WANTS INSTRUCTOR TO ESCAPE DEPORTATION

Twenty-Year-Old Girl Wants Instructor to Help Her to Escape Deportation

Olga Yodpovitch of New York will not be deported. When the beautiful twenty-year-old Serbian who objected to returning to the dreary wastes of her war-torn country, was single, there were indications that the group responsible for her education here to fit her for Serbian relief, might have had her shipped home. But now that she has become Mrs. Sidney K. Wolf, wife of a young instructor in the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale university, she can ignore immigrant quotas and interested immigration.

The fact of Mrs. Wolf's marriage "leaked out" on the Yale campus. The couple have been married a week and are living at No. 119 College street, but beyond admitting their marriage neither will discuss the subject.

Mrs. Wolf was sixteen when she came here after the war. The International Serbian Educational association sent her to Southwestern Louisiana Institute at Lafayette, La., to be educated for service among her people. There she met Mr. Wolf.

She did return to Serbia and found cold and hunger there, but not the associations that four years at an American school had given her. In December she returned to America on La Saviole. At that time it was reported to the Serbian educational authorities and Mr. Wolf urged her to return. There was an interview with Dr. Rosalie Slaughter Morton, head of the association, but following it the girl took a position as a cloak model and was deaf to suggestions that she go home.

"It's news to me," Doctor Morton said when informed that Olga Yodpovitch had become Mrs. Wolf. "That appears to settle the question."

Mr. Wolf, also reached by telephone, thought so too.

"It is ridiculous to speak of deporting Mrs. Wolf," he said. "A lot of untruths have been printed about her over this matter, but talk of deporting her is the worst one."
